

Troubled Waters: Environmental change & Watersipora subtorquata

What – Study the effects of environmental change on growth and survival in W. subtorquata

Why – Bryozoans are habitat formers, stabilizers, and essential components of biodiversity

How – Experiments to find natural growth rate, exposure to different pH and temperature conditions

Fact – Bryozoans are colonial organisms made up of lots of little individual zooids

