Course Delivery

Lecture Day/Time: Tuesdays, Wednesday and Thursdays 15 – 15.50
Room: A 3N7

The class meets three times a week for one hour. All classes are interactive and collaborative. Student are expected to prepare for and attend all classes and to participate in pair activities and group work.

NING This paper uses the social networking site NING instead of Blackboard. It contains current course information (updated weekly), links to relevant learning materials and serves as an out-of-class communication tool.

Repeated absences and/or lateness will affect your final mark.

Expectations and Workload

Students are expected to spend about 10 hours a week on homework and class preparation, assignments and test preparation, vocabulary learning, study of self-selected German materials and blogging.

* A complete and up-to-date course outline will be distributed in the first class.

As an experienced language learner you know that learning a language requires continuous exposure to the foreign language. This paper enables you to engage with materials that are relevant to you and to enhance your oral and written communication skills. It is your personal investment in your study that will determine your success in this paper.
