

Caring for our Communities

Complete your Bachelor of Pharmacy degree at New Zealand's National School of Pharmacy at the University of Otago.

Students enrolled in the Bachelor of Pharmacy at IMU can transfer and complete the final two years of their degree at New Zealand's National School of Pharmacy graduating with a degree from the University of Otago. The Bachelor of Pharmacy programme at Otago is fully accredited by the Australian Pharmacy Council and is recognised as an approved qualification by the Pharmacy Board of Malaysia.

Applications for entry into the Pharmacy programme can be made directly to University of Otago from third semesters of study at International Medical University (see over page).

For more information on credit transfer agreements visit:
pharmacy.otago.ac.nz/undergraduate/international-students

School of Pharmacy

The University of Otago BPharm, the oldest university pharmacy degree in New Zealand, opens opportunities to practise as a pharmacist in various professional settings. It is a broad-based university programme in the physical, biological, social and health sciences. Graduates have a range of career opportunities as part of the healthcare workforce through primary health care, medicines management, community pharmacy, hospital pharmacy as well as new roles in prescribing.

Graduates can register and practise as a pharmacist in New Zealand after a 52 week trainee internship at an approved pharmaceutical establishment. The internship programme is run by the Pharmaceutical Society of New Zealand.

pharmacy.otago.ac.nz

University of Otago is the leading research university in New Zealand.*

*Otago was the only university to be ranked in the top four in all average quality scores (AQS) measures in the Government's 2012 PBRF (Performance-Based Research Fund) Evaluation.

Why study at the University of Otago?

The University of Otago provides a special educational environment situated on a campus that mixes traditional stone buildings and modern architecture.

- It is New Zealand's oldest university.
- Students live in a mix of University and private accommodation within walking distance of the campus and central city services and facilities.
- The University is in a region that provides excellent opportunities to experience outdoor activities and wildlife in a natural setting.
- The University provides highly integrated support for international students and regularly records high satisfaction scores for the international student experience (International Student Barometer).

What can New Zealand's National School of Pharmacy offer you?

- Research excellence – New Zealand's number one School of Pharmacy for research (2012 PBRF Evaluation)
- A highly-regarded qualification
- Integrated teaching approach with high staff to student ratios
- A vibrant student community that is collegial and supportive

Studying in Dunedin, New Zealand

New Zealand's National School of Pharmacy at the University of Otago is situated in Dunedin, a natural heritage city in the south of the South Island. Dunedin (population 127,500) has a vibrant shopping and entertainment precinct and there are opportunities to see wildlife in their natural settings close to the centre of the city. Outdoor pursuits such as skiing are only a few hours away.

Visa requirements, accommodation and costs

Please browse the University's international website for further information and assistance.

otago.ac.nz/international

Applications

Applicants are advised to contact the International Office for advice on application procedures and to obtain an online link for application. Please email international.marketing@otago.ac.nz General information on the application process is available at otago.ac.nz/international/undergraduate/index.html

More information

School of Pharmacy: pharmacy@otago.ac.nz

