Better Health For The Greater Wellington Region

Focus on Rheumatic Fever

Regional Public Health

Māori and Pacific people have some of the highest rates of Rheumatic Fever reported in the world. To eliminate this illness a holistic approach must be taken including increasing awareness, better management of those affected and addressing some of the contributing factors. This presentation will discuss Regional Public Health's contribution to this important work.

Heather Stewart is Group Manager of Regional Public Health's School Health & Immunisation Group. Barbara Eddie, Shirley Pierce, Lisa Langley and Chris Campbell are Public Health Nurses.
