DUNEDIN SPEAKS GERMAN SPEAKS KIWI

The members of GERM331 and GERM243 are happy to share with friends, peers, staff, colleagues, and other citizens the projects they have created in the last two weeks of classes. 12 of them are ready to engage in conversation with all those who are curious about their experience while researching about the relations between Dunedin and Germany. On display there will be mostly flyers but also a mini-diorama, and two videos. These are intended for German visitors to our city, especially to the Toitu Museum and the Otago Museum, to the Olveston House, the Gardens, the I-Site, and possibly the Dunedin Public Library. The works are the concrete and synoptic end-products of rather complex research, and are pitched to “imagined” (and eventually “real”) customers. In order to produce them, the students were involved in organizing and conducting interviews, in meeting with experts and administrators, writing emails and having skype exchanges with Germany and Italy, among other things.

Come and celebrate with us all the end of Semester One, 2017!!
