

What were they doing down there?!

Part I: An overview of the recent University of Otago voyage to the Auckland Islands.

This seminar presentation will discuss the February 2014 research voyage on the MV Polaris II and outline the scientific aims of the participants from the School of Surveying, Department of Geology and Department of Marine Science. This will be followed by a discussion covering the data collected, initial results and an outline of the processing and analysis that remains. A second presentation at a later date will focus on the topographic and hydrographic surveying undertaken in and around Smith Harbour.
