The Construction of the 2018 Census File

Vince Galvin, Chief Methodologist, StatsNZ

Friday 27th September 2019, 12.30-1.15pm

On 23 September Stats NZ will release the first outputs from the 2018 Census. The data has been accompanied by a range of material about the quality of the file. This talk will summarise this material and explain the methods used to create the file.

Vince Galvin is Chief Methodologist at Stats NZ. He has had extensive experience of Official Statistics, two spells at the Australian system, one spell in the British system and involvement in a wide range of international collaboration activities adding to his over 30 years working in the New Zealand system. His work has encompassed Environmental, Social and Economic measurement. He has been on a number of cross agency advisory boards advising on a diverse range of measurement issues. Preparing the 2018 Census file has been a major focus for the Statistical Methods group inside Stats NZ for the last year.
