This one-day course is designed for all those working with Māori, whānau, hapū and iwi. It examines critical developments in Māori public health and the interaction with local, national, regional and global imperatives. The programme is designed to challenge our taken for granted assumptions about the landscape of public health practice and to re-examine our own practices in a safe and supported environment.

Topics covered include:
- Foundational: Tikanga Māori/public health values, principles and practices; Te Tiriti o Waitangi; Data Sovereignty
- Regional: Resistance movements in the Pacific;
- National: working with hard issues including state interventions in Māori child welfare and Māori offending;
- Personal Development skills – self-reflection on personal values in Hauora Māori/the personal/political interface; decolonisation and re-indigenisation.

Full details of the days programme are on our website. Speakers include:
- Kaumātua Raiha Gray
- Moana Jackson
- Paora Crawford Moyle
- Annie Joass
- Dr Hūhana Hickey
- Sina Brown-Davis
- Tina Ngata
- and others

Convenor: Dr Keri Lawson-Te Aho
